

The Daily And the Non-daily in Manchuria Japanese Radio : The Center And the Margins Constructed by Lifestyle Broadcast and Live Broadcast

DAI Ke

By looking into various aspects of the Japanese radio broadcast in Manchuria, this thesis reconstructs a bizarre radio world that was frequently switched between daily and military scenarios. Besides, it is pointed out that there existed a type of “confrontation between the centralized and the marginalized” in Japanese radio. Thus, the multidimensional images of the radio media have been unveiled throughout the argumentation.
